Crown's Supercoach school buses were known for strength and durability, built of 90,000 psi steel, with an expected service life of 20 years. This became a factor contributing to Crown's shutdown in 1991, because competitors produced less expensive buses made of 45,000 psi steel.

Crown Coach

The company began as the "Crown Carriage Company" in 1904, incorporated at the corner of 6 th and Los Angeles St., in a no doubt much less crowded downtown LA... They made their first motorized vehicle in 1916, and in 1920, their first school buses using Reo, Diamond T and Moreland truck chassis (1927 model pictured).
